STRICT EMBARGOED UNTIL MIDDAY (12PM), FRIDAY 2ND DECEMBER 2016

Directors UK Chair, Beryl Richards Wins WFTV Achievement Award

Directors UK, the professional association for British screen directors, would like to congratulate Beryl Richards on receiving the ITV Studios Achievement of the Year Award at the 2016 Women in Film & TV Awards ceremony, on Friday 2 December.

The Achievement of the Year Award recognises women who have made significant impacts in front of or behind the camera in film, TV or digital media over the past year.

Beryl is an award winning writer-director, whose work has included several popular television shows, such as the BAFTA nominated All About Me and the BAFTA and Emmy Award nominated My Life as a Popat. Beryl recently received a BAFTA Children's Award for her work on the CBBC show Secret Life of Boys.

As Chair of Directors UK and Chair of Directors UK Gender Equality Group, campaigning for better representation of women directors, Beryl's contribution to raising awareness and making significant change in the area of women's equality has justifiably been recognised with this award.

Beryl's lead on the gender equality campaign and career development initiatives at Directors UK have helped to improve employment prospects and opportunities for all women Film and TV directors. Her work with the ground-breaking research reports from Directors UK, "Women Directors – Who's Calling the Shots?" in 2014, and "Cut Out Of The Picture - A Study into Gender Inequality Amongst Directors within the UK Film Industry" in 2016, have helped generate media coverage and increase the public's awareness of the issue.

Beryl continues to promote gender equality and Directors UK campaign objectives working in collaboration with broadcasters and production companies, the Government, key industry stakeholders, during media interviews, conference panels and with the general public, both inside and outside the UK.

On winning the award, Beryl commented: "I'm incredibly thrilled to receive this Woman in Film & TV Achievement award. Directors UK have worked tirelessly over the years championing and campaigning for women Film and TV, it is great to be recognised and celebrated amongst so many other great women and organisations in the industry. I hope the awards and this win will help encourage others to think differently about women working in in front of and behind the camera, and ultimately help boost and encourage more creative women to stay strong and persevere, and ultimately help improve employment and opportunities for women in the Film and TV industry."

Directors UK, CEO, Andrew Chowns said: "Beryl is an inspirational chair at Directors UK. She has been pivotal to the success of our campaigns in ensuring that both equality and diversity in UK television are top priority discussions within the industry, as well as establishing us as a campaigning organisation. As a campaigner she has focused on ensuring we achieve positive results in employment; we are incredibly lucky to have Beryl at Directors UK, and delighted that she is being recognised for her work."

Beryl continues to work with the Directors UK Women Directors Gender Equality Group, and is also currently developing her feature film Wrong Planet, supported by BFI, Creative England, Creative Europe and The Wellcome Trust.
