

EVIE GOLDING

Director & Writer

I have an innate passion for creating work that leaves audiences questioning themselves and the world around them – or just feeling a little more human. My niche is social issues and stigmatised topics, I love to be able to make a difference through my work, using raw emotion and drawing on real life to impact audiences.

Most recently I've worked on 'Gangs Of London' S3 as Shadow & 2nd unit Director. Which allowed me to develop key skills to be able to go on to direct series myself. Being mentored through the process and beyond by Directors Farren Blackburn and Kim Hong Sun.

In February'24 my NETFLIX funded drama short film 'The Journey Of Self' was released. So far having been selected for Academy and BIFA qualifying festivals. 'The Journey Of Self' tells the stylised story of one young women's inner turmoil and self actualisation told through the lens of therapy.

Another of my films that demonstrated my style well is 'To Be A Woman', which explores the heart wrenching themes of identity within female reproductive health issues.

My work has been supported by Kodak, Bubble TV, CHEAT, Homespun, Netflix, Merky Festival, Boxpark, Somerset House and more.

While working on series I am developing my next short film, collaborating with an award winning writer which will lead into feature film development. Also, being lucky enough to be guided through the process by another mentor of mine, Reggie Yates.

I'm a person who holds a lot of integrity and empathy, while also being extremely ambitious, driven and hard working.

My overall goal is to have a purposeful and fulfilling career directing high end TV and Film. To me this means audiences being deeply moved, feeling authentically, and creating work that is thought provoking, all allowing audiences to become absorbed in story - the dream.
