BIO

In 2022, Gurmit was acknowledged by BAFTA for his role as an up and coming writer/director, creatively contributing to British television and film production.

In early 2021, Gurmit released his feature film directorial debut, 'Get Gone,' on Amazon Prime, which he also wrote and produced. The film premiered at the Camerimage Film Festival in Poland as one of the 'exciting films from Europe with top cinematography.'

Through BGP, Gurmit produced and directed his first short film, '7 Reasons Why,' which was selected for the Cannes Film Festival's 'Short Film Corner' in 2013.

In 2017, Gurmit released a documentary titled 'Attract Any Woman Anywhere' on Amazon Prime. It also secured distribution in Poland, Berlin, Finland, and Sky Italy.

In 2009, Gurmit launched 'Impress,' a boutique video production agency that produces and directs TV adverts, along with brand story videos for companies across the UK. Today, Impress's clients include Bentley, Nestle, EY, and New Balance, to name a few. Impress has attracted global clients, working closely with Gurmit and the team to bring their creative ideas to life on budget and on time, all the while maintaining a creative flair.

EARLY YEARS

Gurmit's early career in the world of creative arts stems from scripting plays in theatre and producing and directing music videos for up-and-coming urban acts on MTV and Sky channels.

After graduating in Film/TV Production & Sociology, Gurmit went on to lecture in Television & Film at both Universities and Colleges, teaching hundreds of students. It is here that he found his passion for changing the lives of young people through creativity.

After the release of 'Get Gone' on Amazon Prime, Gurmit is currently producing several projects at various stages of development for both Film and TV.
